

spotlight

photo c/o Kim Korzen

SARUS FESTIVAL RETURNS TO ILM

With support from the Wilmington community, KAROLA LÜTTRINGHAUS founded the SARUS Festival in 2007 to challenge boundaries and “offer meaningful professional opportunities” for progressive artists.

SARUS originated as a dance festival, but the annual event now offers a variety of alternative arts and performances from artists around the world. Beginning August 15, this year’s festival will feature site-specific art and performances, live studio discussions, and performance workshops in the downtown area for children and adults. (For more event info, see this month’s event calendar on page 44.)

With her professional background in choreography and set and sound design, Lüttringhaus says the event aims to bestow Wilmington as a greater art tourism magnet and strengthen the “community through art.”

- Carly Rutledge